RE: Dynegy Miami Fort/Headwaters case- movement of equipment

I would highly recommend leaving them intact, bag them, and place them away from any sun light. You are correct, Tuesday I can arrive around 9:30 am if this works for you.

No problem.... I was going to have the straps power washed and tagged out of service but yet hold onto them. Is it ok to wash them up or preferred intact?

PS- you coming on Memorial Day? What time would you like Tuesday?

Chris,

After speaking with my supervisor, please don't destroy or get rid of the 4" synthetic straps or shackles. Also, I would like to come back on Monday to speak with the employee(s) who works inside the tool room. If possible, please locate any purchase invoices on the straps. And as a reminder per our conversation yesterday, provide [REDACTED] 7c training record.

Again, thanks for your support.

Very Respectfully,

Tuesday 0930 is aok. Can I just ask if you are going to do a 1-1 interview with the tool room attendant or is she just going to be a part of group discussion? The tool room attendant is an hourly Union represented position.

I am reviewing my notes from our meet yesterday to get everything lined up for meeting Wednesday. Can you confirm that we are allowed to move the equipment once Dynegy/Headwaters internal investigations wrap up; your request is for us to catalog the rigging equipment for further analysis by yourself next week correct?
